Auroville is a planned universal township for up to 50,000 people, under development in South East India, located close to the Coromandel Coast some 10 kilometres north of Pondicherry. The township was inaugurated on 28th February 1968, and today has almost 2000 residents. Auroville is unique: it is the world's first and only internationally recognised community established for research in human unity, practically researching into humanity's future cultural, environmental, social and spiritual needs. Its global importance is emphasised by the fact that it has been endorsed by UNESCO, and enjoys the full support and encouragement of the Government of India, its host nation.
